Dr. Mohammad Faisal

AMBASSADOR'S MESSAGE

This year Pakistan marked 75 Years of independence, and we celebrated it with great zeal and zest. The Missions in Germany carried out various meeting to enhance bilateral cooperation, social integration and people to people contacts.

However, the monstrous monsoon, resulting in unprecedented floods in the history of Pakistan, posed a new challenge for the nation amid our diamond jubilee of independence.

With around 3.3 million people losing their livelihoods and belongings, Pakistan with already a skewed economic profile is struggling hard to overcome the challenge of their rescue and rehabilitation.

Massive infrastructure losses are also haunting the future of the country, which will require assistance from our friends all around the world in the longer run. Food security and employment sectors are adversely affected as a direct outcome of this calamity.

Our Federal minister for climate change, Ms. Sherry Rehman visited Berlin, in July, to participate in the Petersburg Dialogue, whereby she, for the very first time, put forth a demand of climate justice for the nations which contribute in dismal proportions too global warming and climate change yet stand the most vulnerable and affected by the outcomes.

We hope to see the global players play their positive and just role in this regard.

Also, a delegation of senior officers from Pakistan, undergoing their National Management Course (NMC), visited Germany in August, 2022 as part of their professional training, whereby the Embassy of Pakistan coordinated their meetings with various stakeholders in Germany to apprise them of the nature of significant Pak-German bilateral relations, the diversity of fields in which the two countries work together and further possibilities to enhance this engagement.

We are grateful to the world in general and the German Government in particular, for extending a helping hand in this hour of need by giving the much needed flood assistance both in cash and kind, and assuring us of their support in the longer run as well.

I would also like to thank our German friends and our Diaspora in Germany to hold fund raisers to help their countrymen in need.

We are also thankful to all our community members, who are sending help to Pakistan on their own, because the government cannot, solely, cater for such a massive calamity.

As the representatives of Government of Pakistan in Germany, we engaged various stakeholders to discuss and devise means to send help to the flood victims back home.

The Pakistani Missions in Germany would extend all their support and undertake all possible efforts to work hand in hand with our friends and community in Germany to provide relief and support to those affected by the historic floods.

Dr. Mohammad Faisal

Flood disaster in Pakistan - a multifaceted challenge that requires national determination and global assistance

from Dr. Mohammad Faisal, Ambassador of Pakistan

The world is currently confronted with horrific images from Pakistan. Huge, deadly water floods destroy people's livelihoods and infrastructure. These floods are the result of the drastic climate change affecting the world in general and Pakistan in particular. Torrential flooding - caused by glacial melt combined with intense monsoon rains - has worsened over the past 30 years.

People try to save what is possible

More than 1,500 people have lost their lives so far, including a third children. More than 3,000 kilometers of roads were washed away and more than 1.6 million homes were destroyed. 33 million people across Pakistan are directly affected. However, the suffering and aftermath of this catastrophe are far from over. Crops, both edible and commercial, have been destroyed, many areas are flooded, and health facilities are scarce. Given the severity of the situation, rebuilding normal habitats will take several months, if not years.

Crop destruction poses a major threat to food security, and high inflation will have a long-term impact. The destruction of crops, especially cotton, in areas of Sindh and southern Punjab also risks hundreds of textile workers losing their jobs and futures.

The extent of the devastation increases daily. No precise information can be given at the moment. This can only be determined when the water level drops and the flooded areas become accessible again.
